

with the evening's enjoyment.

NOTES BY THE WAY.—Travelers by the Great Western will observe that a fine new station has been erected at Lynden to replace the one destroyed by fire some time ago. A good brick hotel and several other fine edifices have also been erected in the village, so that the fire may turn out to have been by no means an unmixed evil after all. At St. George business is picking up rapidly, and the amount of traffic centreing at that point would be creditable to a village of greater pretensions. St. George is only a flag station on the railway, but the inhabitants think they are entitled to as great advantages as Lynden, and no doubt they will be accommodated as soon as passenger travel to and from the village has increased a little more. At Harrisburg the principal point to be noted is the grand ball which will eventuate on Thursday evening, 24th instant. Mr. Hazel, the popular landlord of the Victoria Hotel, is making every preparation for the ball, and he expects a large attendance and a merry time.
